Indian Soul, Global Standards	Rooted in Indian heritage. Certified to world-class benchmarks. India is the foundation, not a footnote.

03

Brand Story

THE LERIDA LEGACY

Deep in the ancient caves of Lerida, our ancestors first discovered the transformative power of leather - how raw hide could become something beautiful, functional, and lasting. Thousands of years later, in the bustling workshops of India, that same spirit of transformation lives on.

Tan Lerida was born from a simple belief: that the things we carry should carry us through life's most meaningful moments. Our craftspeople don't just make leather goods; they create companions for your journey.

Every stitch tells a story. Every piece begins its life in our workshop but finds its purpose in yours, whether that's in a boardroom meeting, on a hiking trail, or in a family kitchen where memories are made.

We're not just honouring the past; we're crafting the future of how we live, work, and connect. Because at Tan Lerida, we believe that when something is made with intention, love, and skill, it doesn't just serve you, it becomes part of who you are.

This is leather. This is life. This is Tan Lerida.

This isn't borrowed heritage.

This is ours. This is yours.

This is leather that lives.

PACKAGING INSERT

Use verbatim on packaging inserts only. Everywhere else, earn this register.

Dear You,

This piece began its life long before it reached your hands. It was shaped patiently, touched by many moments of care, and guided by the belief that the things we keep close should mean something.

Now it belongs to you. To your days, your travels, your quiet victories and unseen moments. As you wear it, it will soften, shape itself to you, and begin to tell your story.

Welcome to the world of Tan Lerida.

Timeless. Thoughtful. Yours.

04

The Customer

This is the most important section in the document. Every decision, visual, verbal, or product, should be tested against this portrait.

The Tan Lerida customer has already arrived.

They are not climbing toward a life. They are living one. They have built something: a practice, a reputation, a point of view. They have outgrown the logo phase. They buy quality, and they know the difference.

They buy things once. They keep them. They notice the grain, the weight of the zip, the way the stitching lies. They read the materials page before the product page.

PRIMARY: THE EARNED LIFE

Age 32 to 48. Mumbai, Delhi, Bangalore, Hyderabad, or relocated abroad but considers India home. Founders, consultants, architects, surgeons, creative directors. Built their wealth through competence, not inheritance.

- Wants one bag that goes everywhere and gets better every year.
- Has retired the logo phase.
- Not replacing a worn bag. Buying something that finally reflects who they are now.
- Researches before purchasing. Will tell people about this brand when they find it.

SECONDARY: THE GLOBAL INDIAN

NRI or PIO, 28 to 45. Seeks genuinely Indian craft, not tourist-Indian, not export-Indian. The moment of saying "it's an Indian leather house, they make their own leather" is part of why they buy. Give them that line.

TERTIARY: THE GIFTER

38 to 58. Corporate gifting that reflects their own taste. Has stopped giving pen sets. Needs the story to be easy to pass on, because the story is part of the gift.

- ☐ Wedding/festival premium gifting
- ☐ decision makers

NOT THE CUSTOMER

The logo-seeker	Wants visible branding. Tan Lerida's mark is restrained. This person will not find what they want here, and that is correct.
The trend-follower	Buys the season. This brand is built for the opposite relationship with objects.
The bargain hunter	Not a value conversation. A quality conversation.
The unconvinced	Anyone who needs persuading that Indian craft is world-class is not the target. The brand doesn't make that argument. It demonstrates it.

05

Positioning

CATEGORY

New Indian Heritage Luxury.

Not affordable luxury. Not aspirational luxury. Honest luxury.

ON "AFFORDABLE LUXURY"

This phrase must not appear in an external copy. It implies compromise and positions the brand relative to a ceiling it doesn't recognise as its own.

Internally the intent is right: Tan Lerida competes on quality with far more expensive international brands, priced to reach the right customer. The external expression of that is not a phrase. It is the product, the lineage, the certifications. Let those make the case.

POSITIONING STATEMENT

Tan Lerida is the only leather brand that creates entirely at source, from tannery to finished product, rooted in 70+ years of Indian craft knowledge and certified to global standards. For people who buy once and keep forever.

COMPETITIVE CONTEXT

Study these. Do not imitate them.

Confidential

Nicobar	Indian identity worn with ease. Reference for tone, not category.
----------------	---

Nappa Dori	Handcrafted leather, product-forward. Closest category reference.
-------------------	---

Cuyana	"Fewer, better things." Trusts the product.
---------------	---

Bottega Veneta	Quality so evident the logo becomes unnecessary.
-----------------------	--

HOW WE DIFFER

vs. Hidesign	They buy leather. We make it.
---------------------	-------------------------------

vs. Da Milano	Italian-inspired, not Indian-rooted.
----------------------	--------------------------------------

UI labels, navigation, metadata. Where legibility at small size is the priority.

Specifications, measurements, certifications. Signals transparency.

07

Photography

Not perfection. Truth. The product should look like it has already lived a life, or is about to begin one.

CORE PRINCIPLES

Texture is the hero	Real grain. Real light. No retouching of natural leather texture.
Patina is a feature	Wear and ageing are assets. Shoot product new, broken-in, and well-loved.
Light is directional	Warm, natural, raking. No flat studio fill. Side or back-lit for texture depth.
Context, not catalogue	Products in use or at rest. Worn wood, concrete, stone, linen. No white backgrounds.
People, not models	When people appear: understated, mid-action, not posing. Using the product.

INSTAGRAM FEED

- 4:5 portrait. Consistent warm colour temperature. High contrast against surface.
 - 90% product or detail shots. Lifestyle only when it adds genuine context.
 - No text overlays. Copy lives in the caption.
 - Grid rhythm: close-detail, full product, environmental. Rotate.

INSTAGRAM STORIES & REELS

- Process-forward: grain close-ups, stitching, hardware, tannery clips.
- Short and unhurried. 15 to 30 seconds. No fast cuts.
- No trending audio on product content. Ambient or original only.

WEBSITE

Hero	Large-format, editorial. Directional natural light. No composite backgrounds.
Product shots	Front, back, profile, open interior, hardware detail. All mandatory.
Scale reference	At least one shot per product with a hand or wrist for context.
Interior	Show lining, pockets, construction. Part of the quality story.

BY PRODUCT TYPE

Garments: jackets, skirts, blazers

- On-body and off. Capture drape and weight. Substantial, not stiff.
- Detail shots: collar, hem, pocket placement, sleeve lining.

Goods: bags, wallets, belts

- Multiple angles are mandatory. Shoot bags with contents where natural.
- Hard light on hardware. It tests quality.

Accessories

- Fill the frame with grain, stitching, edge finishing.
- Show scale. Small goods lose their quality story in wide shots.

POST-PROCESSING

- Warm tones, never saturated. Lift shadows slightly. Pull highlights back.
 - No leather retouching. Show the real material.
 - No AI-generated backgrounds. Always real surfaces.

Confidential

NEVER SHOOT

White background	Removes context. Signals catalogue, not brand.
Lifestyle energy	Models in motion, aspirational lighting, beauty-campaign styling.
Craft clichés	Hands-on-leather in golden hour. Artisan staring at work. Product with flowers.
Competing props	No coffee cups, candles, or clutter. The product is the point.

08

Voice & Tone

SIX TRAITS

Assured	Speaks without hedging. States things as fact.
Rooted	India is the foundation, not a footnote. Provenance stated plainly.
Understated	Lets product and process do the talking. No overclaiming.
Craft-obsessed	Always specific. Names the material, the grade, the place.
Unapologetic	Doesn't position relative to Western luxury. Needs no permission.
Warm	Human, not corporate. Second person always: you and we.

RULES

- "You" and "we" always. No distance.
- Every claim anchored to something real: a material, a process, a place.
- One true thing said plainly beats five impressive things said vaguely.
- Short copy: Assured and Craft-obsessed. Long copy: Warm and Rooted.
- Never make the value argument explicitly. Let the product make it.

REACH FOR THESE

you · we · our tannery · full-grain · 35 years · 70 years · softens · shaped · traceable · worn-in · made · hide to hand · LWG Gold · patina · at source

NEVER USE THESE

luxury · premium · exclusive · elevate · curated · effortless · sustainable (standalone) · discerning · artisanal · bespoke · opulent

BY CHANNEL

Instagram Caption	One true thing per post. Can be a single sentence. Lead with craft, close with observation.
Instagram Bio	Functional. What we are and where we come from.
Website Product	Specific on material, grade, construction, use. No atmosphere without substance.
Website Heritage	The Lerida Legacy tone. Can be longer. Must earn its length.
Stories & Reels	Most conversational. Still never promotional or trend-reactive.

09

What to Avoid

VISUAL

Fast fashion lookbook	Hair blowing, white backgrounds, models mid-leap.
Loud branding	Oversized logos, visible marks beyond a restrained stamp.
Startup palette	Millennial pink, sage green, dusty blue, pastel anything.
Processed photography	Heavy retouching, CGI leather, fake textures.
Craft clichés	Golden-hour hands-on-leather. Artisan gazing at work.
Heavy black and gold	The Sabyasachi problem. Use the palette with restraint.
Didot or Bodoni	Too Dior. Signals aspiration toward someone else's identity.

COPY

Heritage bragging	"70 years of excellence" stated flatly. Credential without story.
Sustainability boilerplate	"Committed to sustainable practices." Vague. Indistinguishable from anyone else.
Positioning against the West	"Rivals European luxury." We don't need that comparison.

Humble startup voice	"We believe that..." or "Our journey began..." Wrong register.
-----------------------------	--

Performed Indianness	Hindi words or Sanskrit dropped in to signal heritage. Demonstrate it, don't perform it.
-----------------------------	---

IO

Credentials

State these plainly when relevant. They are the floor of the brand's promise, not the ceiling.

LWG Gold Certified	Leather Working Group Gold. Independently audited for water, energy, chemical stewardship, and supply chain traceability.
SEDEX Compliant	Fair wages, safe conditions, ethical labour. Verified, not aspirational.
Full traceability	We make our own leather. We know exactly where it comes from and how it was processed. Hide to hand.
35+ Years	Tannery founded 1991. Not a claim. A fact.

II

The Single Test

*Does this look like a brand that has something to prove,
or a brand that has something to share?
Always the latter.*

SECONDARY CHECKS

- Would a 25-year-old in Melbourne and a 50-year-old in London both find this compelling?
 - Does it communicate quality without arrogance?
 - Would the customer feel proud to give this and proud to own it?
 - Would the person who made it recognise it as theirs?
